Lakes I have known

Featuring Bev Clark
Aug. 17, 7 to 9 p.m.
Telling Our Stories - A Speakers Series
HHOA Fish Hatchery, 6712 Gelert Rd.
Haliburton
Admission $10/person

Bev Clark has worked in aquatic science for 40 years, most of these at the Dorset Environmental Science Centre where the effects of multiple stressors on aquatic ecosystems are studied. Since retiring from the Ministry of the Environment he continues to consult in aquatic science under his own name in Bracebridge. In later years he was the co-ordinator of the Lake Partner Program, which has given him first-hand experience with thousands of Ontario lakes.

His presentation will discuss interesting facts about the history, ecological function, and management of lakes in Ontario with a few humorous anecdotes added here and there. The presentation will include a few props, some slides, and plenty of informal conversation. There will be time to take the program off the rails a bit and answer more specific questions about lakes.

Clark is an avid angler, paddler, photographer, writer and artist. He has published extensively in both the peer reviewed and popular literature and has served as the president of the North American Lake Management Society. His goal for the next few years is to shift focus from science to art and spend more time painting and carving. It is not surprising that many of his carvings feature fish while the paintings often have water in them somewhere.

A portion of the proceeds will be donated to a local conservation organization.

Dishing out advice

Savour the flavour of summer with some fresh food thinking that's healthy and easy to digest.

That's the advice of Kimberly Leadbeater, a registered dietitian with the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit. Leadbeater encourages local residents to make the most of the season by experimenting with new foods and enjoying the bounty of locally-grown food now available in the area.

"Summertime is a perfect time to enjoy and experience locally grown foods, while also developing a taste for food items you might not normally serve on your plate …or cook on the grill," she says.

Leadbeater points to the barbecue as a great place to serve something new. "Try grilling salmon and pork kabobs, or try a twist on the usual burger by grilling chicken or turkey burger varieties instead," she notes. "You can also enhance your barbecued meat by adding grilled red peppers, zucchini, eggplant, peaches or pineapple on the side."

People travelling on vacation or heading on a road trip this summer are also encouraged to take stock of their eating habits.

"Instead of stopping for meals and snacks, create your own food-to-go that you can eat along the way," Leadbeater says. "Keep a snack bag or cooler with ice packs handy in the car, and stock it with fresh fruit, pre-cut vegetables, unsalted nuts and seeds, trail mix, sandwiches, low-fat granola bars and whole grain crackers with low-fat cheese. You will save time and money!"

Summer is also the time to enjoy the season's harvest, she adds, especially with fresh berries, peaches, plums and corn on the cob being readily available at farmers' markets, farm gates and grocery stores. To make the most of locally grown foods, Leadbeater points to the Foodland Ontario (www.ontario.ca/foodland/recipes) and Eat Right Ontario (www.eatrightontario.ca) websites as excellent resources for finding recipes that incorporate fresh, in-season produce.

One locally grown food item that is readily available is lettuce, and Leadbeater says it is ideal for using in green salads. "Simply toss the lettuce, or another favourite green, in with leftover ingredients you have on hand to enjoy green salad every day," she says.

To create a savoury salad, combine leftover grilled chicken, cherry tomatoes, cucumbers, red onions, or even a can of lower sodium beans (rinse and drain beans first to wash away some of the sodium). For a sweet-tasting salad, Leadbeater suggests adding leftover fruits such as peaches, berries, apples and plums, then toping it with splash of low-fat salad dressing or a home-made variety using oil, flavoured vinegars, herbs or spices.

Deer proofing your garden

Living Large
Humour by Steve Galea

With the Minden Flower Show and all this talk of gardening, we forget one thing. No garden in this county is safe so long as deer roam freely. The good news is deer can be deterred by a few simple techniques that we might revisit.

Here are 10 you might consider:

1. Set up a tombstone beside your garden that says, "Here lies Bambi." Of course, this is based on the presumption that deer can read. I believe they can, otherwise why do we waste all that money on deer crossing signs.
2. Set up a tree stand over the tiger lilies. There's nothing like a well-placed tree stand set up in a "perfect" location to keep deer away.
3. Tell Trump it's the Mexican border and he'll build a huge wall for you and get the Mexicans to pay for it. And possibly garden for you too.
4. Grow okra: no creature on earth truly likes okra.
5. Provide signage directing them to your neighbour's garden. Add a menu of what's in season right now too.
6. Garden gnomes decked out in hunter orange.
7. Put out word you are presenting a slideshow of your last 10 family vacations. No creature on earth would willingly sit through this.
8. Plastic flowers. Get the type that spin with the wind. Sharpen the edges.
9. Grow your garden in a wolf enclosure. Sure you risk the odd issue too, but it would be worth it to see those hostas actually leaf out.
10. Grow Venus fly traps and, over the season, train these carnivorous flowers to love venison. It might mean you sacrifice the last tenderloin in the freezer but it should pay off eventually.

Senior's Spotlight

A life well lived and travelled: Hilda Clark

By Angelica Ingram

There likely isn't a corner of Highlands East that Hilda Clark isn't connected to or can tell you a story about.

A retired teacher, Clark was born on March 12, 1933, to parents Catherine Mable May Hughey and Walter Edwin Clark.

At the age of 83, Clark finds herself living her busy days at her family's homestead on Loop Road in Wilberforce and filling her time with books, live theatre, volunteering, writing her weekly columns for the Haliburton Echo, running a bed and breakfast and of course, at the Red Cross Outpost.

There isn't much going on in Wilberforce that Clark doesn't know about, making her a pillar of the community.

"I was born in the Outpost," she says, "a national historic site."

Born and raised in Wilberforce, Clark went to school up to Grade 10 in Highlands East before heading to Haliburton to finish high school.

"That was a bit of a shock," she says, reminiscing about how she showed up with no knowledge of Latin, which she was told she wouldn't need, and then found out that wasn't the case.

The youngest of the family, Clark says she always knew she was going to be a teacher.

Her first year of teaching was spent in a one room schoolhouse in Fenelon Falls.

> [The Red Cross Outpost] was sitting empty and some of us were afraid they'd sell it.
> — Hilda Clark

"I had this very romantic notion about teaching in a rural school," she says.

Clark taught for 35 years and started as a phys-ed teacher. She spent many of those years teaching in the Oakville area, where she moved because she was seeking a new challenge.

"I got itchy feet," she says. "At that time Oakville was a tiny town."

Retired for almost 30 years, she still visits with many of her past classmates and colleagues, attending reunions all over the province.

Clark reminisces about summers spent in Saskatchewan, in Chelsea, England, and in Hamilton, where she took courses at McMaster University.

Wilberforce resident Hilda Clark has been ingrained into Highlands East since the day she was born. A lover of books, theatre and music, the retired teacher has spent her life travelling, volunteering, educating and much more. ANGELICA INGRAM Staff

The memories all bring a spark to her eye as she shares anecdotes, tells tales about friends made along the way and opens up about her adventurous spirit.

She has been to every province in Canada, spent a summer abroad taking courses in England and has even been in a float plane.

"I'm just glad I did all these crazy things when I did," she says.

Clark returned to Wilberforce after her retirement in 1988 and it wasn't long before she got involved in local theatre, the Old Rec Fundraising Committee and the Red Cross Outpost, to name a few.

Involved in the Highlands East Loop Troupe "since the beginning," Clark has been involved with a number of productions, including Our Gal Sal, Pioneer Spirit and Gone to Glory.

"It was really good," she says of Gone to Glory.

She was the director of the group's most recent production, Who Murdered Who?, performed this past April.

Clark got involved with the Red Cross Outpost in the 1990s, following a conversation with Cathy Agnew.

"It was sitting empty and some of us were afraid they'd sell it," she says.

The Outpost was made a national historic site in 2003, she says.

Her retirement business has been running The House in the Village, a B&B in downtown Wilberforce, across from Agnew's General Store.

Prior to opening it she took a business course and put together a business plan.

When she went into a bank to apply for a loan she was praised for the amount of work and thought she had already put into her business.

Clark has been recognized many times over for her community commitment and passion, being given the Queen's Jubilee medal in 2003, for instance.

Apart from volunteering, other passions include reading and taking in ballet and theatre performances. With shelves and shelves filled with books, Clark fills her spare time, what little she has, by reading Canadian authors such as Terry Fallis and Alice Munro.

She jokes she should hire a student to catalogue her extensive reading collection.

And who could forget her weekly columns in the pages of the Haliburton County Echo. Without fail Clark writes about the goings on of Highlands East, with specific emphasis on Wilberforce.

Each week readers can expect to see recaps of the past weekend's events, learn about those who have died or how the latest curling bonspiel went.

Clark began writing the columns for the paper following in the footsteps of Winnie Schofield, said former Echo editor Martha Perkins.

When Schofield retired, Perkins wasn't sure how she was going to replace her, however Clark took on the challenge sometime in the mid-2000s, she said.

"Hilda has an encyclopedic memory of Wilberforce's history and all the people who lived there," she said. "She had left the county during her years as a teacher and luckily for Echo readers, she decided to retire in Wilberforce. She is a force of nature. There's no stopping her once she gets an idea in her head or a project on the go ... she was often my go-to person when I needed to know something about Wilberforce but I always knew to give myself plenty of time for the answer because Hilda has that very Irish way of taking the winding path into the past."

Experience incredible Barcelona

Machenzie Neumann
Travel Plus

Machenzie here, I have just returned home from my trip to Barcelona, Spain, two weeks ago and all I can say is wow, what an incredible city. We took a non-stop flight from Montreal to Barcelona onboard Air Transat which was roughly seven hours in length. If you are looking for seats that have a little more space but do not want to pay the Club Class upgrade I would recommend the seats at the rear of the aircraft in the section that offers two seats in a row. Air Transat offers four flights a week from Toronto to Barcelona and the same from Montreal.

Our hotel the BCN Urban Gran Ronda was located only 400 metres from the top of Placa Catalunya and Las Ramblas which is exactly where you want to be if you want to enjoy shopping for both clothes and souvenirs, local cafés and coffee shops, restaurants, pubs and many tapas restaurants. For those who don't know what tapas are, they are small hors d'oeuvres that range from a bowl of olives, bruschetta, select meat and cheeses or, my favourite, prosciutto and goat cheese baked on a fresh baguette.

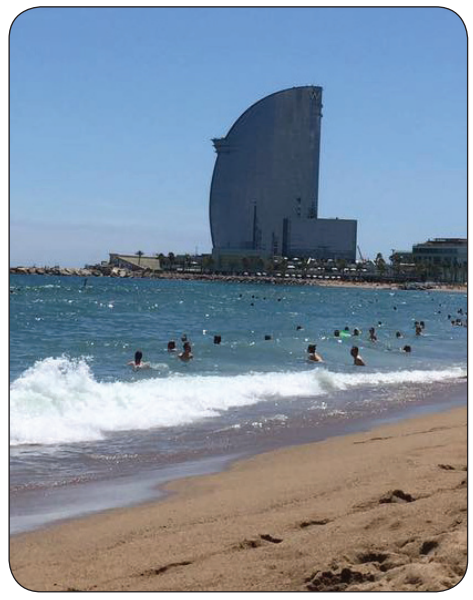
In Spain they have great wine, but after a day on the beach if you are looking for something a little bit more refreshing than a glass of vino you can order one litre mugs of local beer or, my favourite, sangria! Yum!

From Las Ramblas you are only about a 20-minute walk from Port Veil which is where the luxury yachts dock. There were two yachts docked the entire week we were there so we ended up being nosey and googled who owned them: the first one, and my favourite was the Radiant, which is a 361-foot luxury yacht worth some $280 million owned by a very wealthy businessman out of United Arab Emirates the other, which was Mitch's favourite, was a 468 foot $300 million yacht owned by a Russian billionaire. I was hoping one of them was owned by someone famous like Leo DiCaprio or some other big movie star. The Barcelona Beach is just a short distance from the port and this is where we spent a fair amount of time because the weather was a scorching 33 degrees every day and that Mediterranean Sea was so refreshing!

Barcelona is an extremely easy city to navigate and walk around in. If you are not one for lots and lots of walking they offer bike rentals and taxi cabs are very easy to get. One day we stumbled across the Arc de Triomf, which was built back in 1888 for the Barcelona World Fair. This area leads into the Parc de la Ciutadella, which also happens to be where the Parliament buildings of Catalonia are, as well, the Barcelona Zoo is located there.

Make sure you don't miss a trip to Park Guell – this stunning UNESCO world heritage site is set along a hillside with views from the top of the park overlooking the city landscape and the Mediterranean Sea. The park is filled with different structures all made up with different colours and shapes it truly is remarkable.

The highlight of my trip, without a doubt, was going into the Sagrada Familia. This church is still being built after 133 years with another 10 to 12 more to go. The architecture, which is another of Antoni Gaudi (Park Guell was created by him as well), is stunning. The sheer size of the church is something else, I was at a loss for words when I went inside. The stained glass windows all around the church to the spiraling staircases and spires are amazing. Everything in the church has meaning to it Gaudi believed that colour was the expression of life and a lot of his architectural design was inspired by nature.



Hope you are having a great summer! Believe it or not we are already booking for next winter – check out Linda's column next month when she tell you all about her favourite destinations in the world and she still wants to visit.
